RAMPAGING RIVERS SPREAD FLOOD INTO FAIRBANKS STREETS

Ice Jam Causing Water to Flow Into Streets, Forcing Many Residents to Flee From Homes—
Hollywood Motion Picture Company Is Stranded on an Island

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, May 13 (P).—Many residents fled their homes tonight as flood waters of the Chena and Tanana Rivers spread over the city. Water a foot deep flowed through the principal thoroughfare, flooding hotels, churches and a hospital. Sidewalks made of wood floated away in the rising water. Water rose to the second story of the Catholic Church. The Alaska Railroad's station was also flooded.

Ice jams along the Chena River broke, but an airplane pilot reported the biggest jam at the confluence of the Chena and Tanana River near here was still holding.

TWO ON CABIN ROOF
The pilot reported he saw two men atop an isolated cabin fourteen miles east of here.

A Hollywood motion picture company was stranded on an island in the Chena. Twelve members of Director Norman Dawn's production party were stranded on the island after crossing the river to film ice scenes for Republic Pictures Corp. Their boat was swept away.

SWIMS FOR HELP
Jack Weatherax, animal trainer for the company, dove into the ice-choked waters of the river, successfully swam to the Richardson Highway on the opposite side and ran to Fairbanks for aid.

He attempted to ford the river opposite Fairbanks with a wagon and horses, but was forced back by the water and ice. He then loaded supplies aboard a polling boat and manoeuvred his way to the island. No anxiety was felt in Fairbanks for the motion picture company.

Statesmen of the Empire Make Last Preparations For Imperial Conference

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin Will Preside at St. James' Palace

DEFENCE IN FIRST LISTED SUBJECTS

LONDON, May 13 (P).—Problems of Imperial defence, particularly in relation to air and sea communications between strategic centres of the Empire, and foreign relations tonight faced the Empire's statesmen as they made final preparations for the Imperial Conference.

It was learned, however, that no attempt will be made to reach a uniform defence policy for the Empire, a policy which, if adopted by the majority, would be binding on the minority. It was emphasized that the conference is made up of autonomous governments, and each will continue, as in the past, to determine its own policies.

FINISHING TOUCHES
Canada's delegation put finishing touches to its preparations when Prime Minister Mackenzie King conferred with Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner in London. Most of the Dominion delegates spent the afternoon at their hotels or at Canada House, going over reports and other papers.

The five giant locomotives now under construction will be called the Dominion of Canada, the Commonwealth of Australia, the Dominion of New Zealand, the Union of South Africa and the Indian Empire, the railway said. The company said the King has granted special permission for the use of the name "Coronation Express," as well as those given to the locomotives.

Face Heavy Round of Formal Engagements During the Coming Weeks

LONDON, May 13 (P).—The King and Queen surprised and delighted thousands of their subjects by an unannounced fourteen-mile drive in a closed car through the streets of North and Central London this afternoon.

The drive, which took in Islington, where the mayor bowed as their Majesties passed; Kentish Town and Camden, Town recalled to memory the Jubilee drives taken in 1935 by King George V and Queen Mary, both in the warmth of reception given by the crowds and the lack of announcement that their Majesties would make the trip.

STATUE BLOWN TO FRAGMENTS

Explosion Occurs in Dublin While Detectives Searching for Dynamite

DUBLIN, May 13 (CP-Havas).—Police tonight sought persons responsible for the destruction early today of the statue of King George II in St. Stephen's Green. Explosives planted underneath it were set off at 8:15 a.m.

Authorities disclosed that the explosion occurred while detectives were searching the Green for a hidden dynamite cache. They received a tip from an unknown source that a cache had been made there.

The fifteen-foot base of the equestrian statue was hurled twenty feet by the blast. Fragments were scattered over several hundred feet and windows of nearby homes were shattered. There were no injuries.

FORMER ATTEMPT
The statue was damaged by a bomb explosion during the Irish Republican demonstration on Armistice Day, 1928.

Spanish Battleship Takes Wounded Men to Almeria

LONDON, May 14 (P).—The British destroyer Hunter, at least eight of her crew killed and more than a score injured lay in Almeria Harbor today while investigation was pressed into the explosion off the coast of civil war-torn Spain that all but sank the year-old craft.

The Admiralty was reticent. An explosion yesterday tore a hole in the warship near the waterline while she was cruising five miles off Almeria, on the southwest coast of Spain, its brief announcement stated.

With the Premier were Pilot E. C. M. Dobbin, Ben Hethy, his secretary, and James Dyer, Vancouver newspaperman.

RAILWAY TO USE NEW KIND OF CAR

Vehicles to Travel on Rails and Highways, C.N.R. President Announces

MONTREAL, May 13 (P).—Four cars capable of going under their own power on rails or highway will be put in service by the Canadian National Railways early this summer, President S. J. Hingford announced today.

The "auto-railers," first in Canada—will go to work in the Atlantic, Central and Western regions. One twenty-six passenger car will be placed in each area, and a freight car will be used in the Western region.

The cars run on inflated wheels, both on and off the tracks. On the rails, a flange holds them to the steel, controlled from the driver's seat. They can move from the highway to the rails in one minute, the president said.

Roosevelt Is Going Ahead With Original New Deal Proposals

President Says Immediate Goal Is Stabilization of Commodity Prices—Plans Conference With Congressional Leaders

A BOARD ROOSEVELT TRAIN EN ROUTE TO WASHINGTON, May 13 (P).—Assuming an apparent no-compromise attitude, President Roosevelt told a press conference on board his train today that the broad objectives of his first administration remained the aims of his second.

The chief executive said his immediate goal was stabilization of commodity prices within reasonable limits and the spirit of the invalidated AAA.

But broadly speaking, he asserted he was going ahead in orderly fashion with all original new deal objectives, including many others not yet attained.

The President said he would see weakened enforcement.

FORMER HEDLEY HEAD ARRESTED

Russell E. Barker Surrenders To Police at Vancouver—
Charged With Conspiracy

VANCOUVER, May 13 (P).—Russell E. Barker, sought by police since the mine he directed was branded "salty" by a Government investigator, today gave himself up to the authorities.

Barker, former president of the Hedley Amalgamated Gold Mines, walked into the police station at 1 p.m. and was placed under custody on charges of conspiracy to defraud. He faces the same charge as William Cox, mine superintendent, and Jack Fraser, foreman, arrested last week and subsequently released on bail.

Bail was set at $8,000 for Barker, and late tonight it had not been supplied.

ENDS POLICE SEARCH

Today's surrender ended a week-long search by police, started after a report by G. L. Fraser, Government commissioner appointed to investigate the market collapse of Hedley stock last February, informed the Government that mine samples on which publicly-announced assays were based, had been "salty."

Two Thugs Hold Up Montreal Cashier—Men Drop Satchel Containing $2,300

MONTREAL, May 13 (P).—Two bandits, racing from the scene of their armed robbery of a Canada Broad Limited cashier today, dropped a satchel containing part of the $2,700 loot when an unsuspecting motorcycle constable started in pursuit after they drove through a traffic light.

Police said the $2,300 the fugitives threw from their automobile was turned over to authorities by a street cleaner.

The man told them he found the satchel in a lane through which the motorcycle officer chased the bandits' car just before losing it in heavy traffic.

Although the gunmen were handkerchiefed over their faces, police said they believed they had established identity of the pair from various descriptions.

MAKE PLANS FOR MAY 24

Aldermen Edward Williams And James Adam Work On Victoria Day Events

Arrangements for a Victoria Day celebration on May 24 are being made by Aldermen Edward Williams and James Adam, a sub-committee of the city's anniversary celebration group, headed by Alderman T. W. Hawkins.

Plans call for a spectacular Indian pageant in Royal Athletic Park, open air dancing on Blanshard Street, various sporting events, and a fireworks display from the Inner Harbor.

Also under consideration are loggers' sports, a swimming carnival, bicycle races, outdoor band concerts, a torchlight and decorated bicycle parade, a coaster race down Yates Street hill, boat races, a fishing competition, Maypoles and folk dancing.

It is not anticipated that a parade will be held until August, the anniversary month of the city's incorporation seventy-five years ago. It is expected a "Miss Victoria" and four princesses will be selected to preside over Victoria Day festivities.

FRIENDLY HELP CONTINUE DRIVE

Canvassers' Reports Should Be Satisfactory at Campaign Dinner Tonight

Although no formal reports are being made by canvassers in the Friendly Help Welfare $2,500 campaign until the second campaign dinner to be held tonight in Spencer's dining-room at 6 o'clock, it is known by officials at headquarters, 301 Hibben-Bone Building, that most of the collectors are being cheerfully received by those on whom they are calling, and encouraging results are expected in the totals that will be made up tonight.

The speaker at the meeting will be Magistrate Henry C. Hall, K.C., who has shown a well-informed interest in welfare work generally, and child welfare work particularly, ever since his appointment to his present office. He will deal briefly with some phase of the subject in his talk.

One of the "donations" which may not be referred to in the formal reports in connection with the campaign, is that from the Y.M.C.A., which as its contribution to the "fund" has lent the services of its general secretary, Frank Paulding, to direct the effort. He may be found a great part of the day at the headquarters offices at the Hibben-Bone Building.

One married couple in the city are reported to have given to no less than three different canvassers, so completely in sympathy with the campaign are they. This does not mean that three canvassers have called on them. The lists are too carefully made to admit of such overlapping. It simply means that they have gone out of their way to give encouragement to a cause which they deem worthy of the most whole-hearted support.

THEIR MAJESTIES DRIVE IN STREETS

national theatre. Thousands danced through the night.

The Duchess of Gloucester took a party to the ball, including the Duchess of Buccleuch-Hoey-Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner, and Mrs. Massey were among guests in the Royal box. Others in the Royal box included Prince and Princess Chichibu of Japan, the Crown Prince and Princess of Norway, the Crown Prince and Princess of Sweden and Princess Juliana and Prince Bernhard of Holland.

MESSAGE OF THANKS
The King issued a message expressing thanks to all who helped in the Coronation arrangements, paying a special tribute to the soldiers and police for their handling of crowds, and the voluntary organizations. St. John Ambulance Brigade, the British Red Cross Society and the Boy Scouts.

He said he and Queen Elizabeth admired the decorations on the streets as they drove to and from the stately ceremony in Westminster Abbey yesterday.

Thousands upon thousands cheered the King and Queen in today's surprise tour of the poorer Northern district that they had been unable to visit before the Coronation.

A QUICK RESPONSE
Hurriedly painted signs, "God Bless the King and Queen" and "The Leather Lane Traders Greet Their Majesties," were hastily strung across a roadway when Leather Lane and Clerkenwell Road received word that Their Majesties were en route.

They returned via the Marble Arch, Hyde Park, the East Carriage Drive and Constitution Hill—where twenty-four hours previously they rode in the gilded state coach in the full pageantry of the Coronation procession.

News of the drive spread like wildfire before their arrival in most districts. One woman was noticed rushing hastily to the door of her home and waving a saucer.

Work was suspended in factory districts as employees flocked to the streets. Mechanics in overalls and working girls in white linen smocks lined the sidewalks. Fronts of buildings were blanketed by red, white and blue streamers.

QUEEN MARY CHEERED
Queen Mary also met a cheering reception when she drove in a closed carriage along the Strand and neighboring streets during this afternoon. Her progress was delayed at frequent intervals by large crowds.

Meanwhile, the fleet prepared for its impressive display of strength on May 20. The flagship Queen Elizabeth headed thirty craft of the Mediterranean fleet that arrived at Portsmouth for the review to be held at Spithead. H.M.S. Hood, largest fighting craft afloat, with H.M.S. Repulse and H.M.S. Glorious, met the fleet at H.M.S. Gormston.

The home fleet, that massed in the Thames for Coronation Day, lifted anchors today and left for Spithead, where the King will review his fleet and visiting warcraft of many nations in the Coronation review.

UNDIMMED ENTHUSIASM
Tonight thousands, their enthusiasm undimmed by two days of cheering, gathered outside Buckingham Palace calling: "We want our King and Queen."

The crowd watched the arrival of royalty and foreign dignitaries for the banquet, many crowding into the Coronation stands nearby.

Queen Mary was cheered over and over as she drove in with Queen Maud of Norway.

The King received his guests in the full-dress uniform of a field marshal. Queen Elizabeth wore a gown of ivory lace embroidered with tridescant paillettes, and a diamond tiara with a necklace of diamonds.

Earlier in the day the Port of London authority entertained delegates to the Empire Parliamentary Association at luncheon at Tilbury.

INVESTED WITH HONORS
Sir Hubert Gough, commander of the Fifth Army in France, was among several persons received by the King at Buckingham Palace this afternoon and invested with honors awarded on Tuesday in the Coronation honors list. Sir Hubert received the Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath.

Tonight the King presided at table in the white and gold ballroom. The Queen presided in the ball supper-room. While the 450 guests, including many royalties, sat at dinner, the shout "We want the King" floated in from the crowds outside.

The King and Queen appeared twice on the balcony of the palace after the dinner concluded. After their first appearance the crowd impressively sang the National Anthem, after which Their Majesties reappeared amid renewed cheers.

IMPLICIT INSTRUCTIONS
Reports have reached the police that motorists were in the habit of cutting off a corner in a certain Irish village, and the officer in charge decided that something would have to be done before a serious accident occurred.

A civic guard was therefore sent to police the corner.

During the first few minutes of his duty a car drove round the corner at high speed in the old manner. The civic guard pulled up the driver.

"Don't you know you must go round me?" he asked sternly.

"Sorry," replied the driver. "I didn't know you were there."

"Well, be careful now," was the reply. "In future, go round me whether I'm here or not."

SUPPORT BAND TOUR TO SOUTH

Chamber of Commerce and Publicity Bureau Believe Move a Good One

Harold Husband, president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, yesterday stated that the pipe band of the 16th Canadian Scottish had the unqualified endorsement of the Chamber of Commerce and Publicity Bureau toward representing Victoria at the Golden Gate Fiesta at San Francisco, May 27 to June 2.

He stressed its important tourist value and the tremendous publicity that would be incidental to the presence of the kilted bagpipers during the gigantic parade which will feature the ceremonies at the opening of the Golden Gate Bridge. Up to the present time they will be the only Canadian representation at San Francisco and an endeavor is being made to have the Scottish Pipe Band represent not only Victoria and the Province of British Columbia, but the Dominion of Canada, so that the advertising value for our community is of inestimable value.

OFFER CO-OPERATION
Mr. Husband stated that Thomas Watkins, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, had pledged the co-operation of his organization toward assisting to make up the sum necessary for traveling expenses.

C. H. Stevens, president of the Publicity Bureau, stated the bureau was 100 per cent behind the move, but unfortunately, he said, it could not contribute to the fund and hoped the general appeal to the public would result in the building up of a fund sufficient to take care of the band's expenses. He thought the move a good one from many points, especially that of publicity for the city.

The band requires an additional $350 to cover expenses for the attendance at San Francisco and the authorities are looking to the public to give their usual generous support.

suggested a submarine might have torpedoed the warcraft.

The Hunter took water rapidly but was quickly reached by Spanish Government warcraft including the battleship Jaime I, which took off the wounded and rushed them to an Almeria hospital. The Hunter was towed to port by the Spanish destroyer Lazaga.

The British destroyer Hyperion arrived off Almeria during last night and the cruiser Arethusa set out from Barcelona. Gibraltar reported warships there got up steam in preparation for imminent departure should orders be issued.

The explosion took place at 3:15 p.m. (7:15 a.m. P.S.T.) and the Hunter reached Almeria at 4 p.m.

Gibraltar reported the casualties probably would be taken to that rock-fortress during today by the destroyer Hardy, which also raced for Almeria.

Lieut.-Commander B. C. Scurlfield is in command of the Hunter, part of the second destroyer flotilla in the Mediterranean fleet. She carried a complement of 145 men and is 323 feet in over-all length, thirty-three feet wide and draws eight and one-half feet.

ELECTRICAL CONTRACTORS

And Others

THE Dominion Government's Home Improvement Plan was designed to provide employment in the building and allied trades and at the same time aid home-owners to finance the cost of renewals and repairs.

Under this plan, repairs are financed in easy payments over a term of years at a very low rate of interest. Contractors should obtain a supply of the loan application forms, make themselves familiar with the simple requirements and be prepared to take the home owner's application for a loan. The loan money may be assigned to the contractor to be paid on the owner's certificate that the work is satisfactory.

There are many people in every district who do not yet realize the opportunity this plan offers to them. Plumbers, roofers, carpenters, decorators—canvass your districts, and obtain Home Improvement Loan Applications from any branch of this bank.

326,415 persons exercised their franchise then.

City and Island ridings with their current voting totals were given out as follows: Victoria, 25,610, including Oak Bay, Saanich, 8,587; Esquimalt, 5,679; Alberni-Nanaimo, 10,726; Comox, 6,962; Cowichan-Newcastle, 5,939; The Islands, 2,528.

ON MAINLAND

The heaviest percentage of the vote is in Vancouver ridings, listed as follows: Burrard, 34,537; East, 33,861; Centre, 32,404; Point Grey, 40,973; Burnaby, 19,996; Delta, 13,584; Dewdney, 6,018, and North Vancouver, 11,536.

The new seat in Peace River has 3,493; and the recreated Columbia riding, 2,077 voters. New Westminster was recorded with 10,708 registered voters.

In general the lists are longer than they were three years ago, though still considerably less at some points than registrations on the Dominion voters' list.

Crime Negligible On the Mainland

VANCOUVER, May 13 (CP-Havas).—Criminals took a holiday yesterday, according to police reports. Not even the usual number of "drunks" were arrested. Prowlers visited a few homes but their loot was negligible.

LONDON, May 13 (CP-Havas).—Six hundred Durham County miners went on strike today, demanding that the operators make good the day's pay they were forced to lose yesterday when the pits closed in honor of the Coronation.

D. M. MCGREGOR SUCGUMBS HERE

Former School Teacher and War Veteran Dies of Injuries Through Accident

As the result of injuries received on Sunday evening, when he collided with an automobile driven by Victor Dear, Cordova Bay, at the intersection of Yates and Blanshard Streets, Donald M. McGregor passed away in the Jubilee Hospital early last evening. He was under treatment by Dr. C. Denton Holmes for a fractured skull and fractures to both leg bones. Dr. E. C. Hart stated an inquest would be held.

Born here forty-six years ago, Mr. McGregor was educated at Victoria High School and McGill University. He went overseas with the 67th Battalion, Machine Gun Section, and subsequently received a commission with the 47th Battalion. After the war he was attached to the teaching staff at Oaklands School for four years, and interested himself in all branches of school sport. Later he taught school at Wyndel before returning to Victoria to retire through ill-health.

At the time of the fatal accident he was residing at 920 Yates Street. Mr. McGregor was a nephew of the late Captain Herlick McGregor. He is survived by his widow, Lillian Rolfe McGregor; his mother, Mrs. H. M. McGregor; and one sister, Mrs. W. Oliphant, of this city. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

LONDON, May 13 (CP-Havas).—Thousands of stamp collectors besieged the postoffice today when the new King George VI and special Coronation commemorative issues were placed on sale.

Long queues aroused fears that the 38,000,000 stamps printed for the opening day would be exhausted.

Coronation Music Splendidly Given By Local Ensemble

Invitation Performance of Festival of British Music
Heard by Congregation That Filled Christ
Church—Last Performance Tonight

EVERY seat in Christ Church Cathedral was filled last evening on the occasion of the invitation state performance of the festival of British music given by the Victoria Choral and Orchestra Union in celebration of the Coronation of Their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth. There will be a final public performance tonight.

It was a great triumph for Stanley Bulley and the great ensemble of more than 230 voices, and instruments which he conducted. Benefiting from the "dress rehearsal" of the previous evening, when the audience was almost entirely composed of school children of the city, last night's was a still more distinguished performance, showing commendable finesse in detail and keen ensemble spirit. Among those present were: His Honor the Administrator, Hon. Aulay Morrison, who was attended by Captain W. Hobart Molson; Major M. W. Turner, Lieut.-Commander F. R. W. R. Gow and Hew Patterson; Hon. John Hart, representing the Province of British Columbia, and Mayor Andrew McAvin, representing the city.

CORONATION THEME

"God Save the King" might be called the theme of the programme; the phrase or its equivalent recurring again and again in the selections by the several composers represented. These, with the exception of Holst, whose lively "Pagan Overture" for orchestra seemed as sharp contrast for the preceding and succeeding numbers, were all in their day, "Composers to His Majesty the King."

Although there was nothing in the nature of a religious service in the occasion, the whole performance was marked by much dignity and depth of feeling. Immediately on arrival of His Honor the Administrator, while the congregation sang William Boyce's unaccompanied "Long Live the King," this, in turn, being followed by short prayers for the royal family conducted by the Dean; and Edward Elgar's noble setting of the National Anthem. For choir and orchestra, this was arranged by the composer to be sung at the gala performance at the Royal Opera, Covent Garden, in honor of the Coronation of King Edward VII. The first verse sung by the treble voices, the second by the full choir, unaccompanied, and the third with full orchestral and organ accompaniment; this proving a deeply moving exhortation, attaining a noble climax in the dignified ritard of the last line.

HANDEL MUSIC

The next two numbers were by George Frederick Handel who, although a German and a Capellmeister to the Elector of Hanover, adopted England as his home and became one of the most popular of "English" composers. His sublimely "English" music, his "Messiah" and "Zadok the Priest," written for the Coronation of George II, and which has been sung at every Coronation ceremony since then, including that in London this week, was an admirable performance here last night, and compared very favorably with that heard by listeners in the Westminster Abbey service. The full orchestral accompaniment, to which the strings give brilliance and the tympani an effect of vigor of tempo, added much to the beauty of the work.

For the orchestra alone was the suite from the same composer's "Water Music," which reinstated Handel in favor with George II, whom, as Elector of Hanover, the composer had offended by taking up his residence in England. It has an ingratiating sweetness, charm

Failed Twice In Effort to Wreck Train

YARMOUTH, N.S., May 13 (CP-Havas).—Two unsuccessful attempts to wreck the Canadian National Railway Halifax-Yarmouth train at nearby Argyle were disclosed in court today when Gilbert Cavanagh, sixty-three, of Argyle municipality poor farm, pleaded guilty to a charge of placing obstructions across the tracks.

Cavanagh was sentenced to serve three years in penitentiary. The poor farm patient confessed he had placed railway ties across the tracks so he could escape from the institution in the ensuing confusion.

ROTARY HEARS TWO SPEAKERS

Rev. Dr. W. J. Sippell and P. B. Fowler Recount Incidents of Convention

Rev. Dr. W. J. Sippell and P. B. Fowler gave further highlights of the Rotary district conference, which was held in Spokane last week, at the club luncheon yesterday in the Empress Hotel.

Defining it as a masterpiece, Dr. Sippell devoted most of his talk to the address delivered at the conference by Wes Rennie, secretary of the Y.M.C.A. in Seattle. With its great gift for promoting international good will the speaker urged Rotary to enter the zone of conflict of the world in the interests of peace.

Dr. Sippell also recounted incidents and impressions gathered by Mr. Rennie during his five-month trip around the world. He described Japan as a land of charm with an unique culture, while the people displayed immense loyalty.

TURKEY IS PROSPEROUS

China, India and Jerusalem were also on Mr. Rennie's itinerary. Turkey, he said, was making great strides in progress, being the one country in Europe with a balanced budget and a surplus of money in the treasury, due largely to its dictator, Kimal. Mr. Rennie described the German people as possessing the idea of following a leader. People of Sweden were the most cultured in the world, while England was unique for its policy of "Pay as we go," it was stated.

Mr. Fowler spoke on the varied entertainment features of the conference and the value of the fellowship created at conventions.

Charles B. Jones, former Reeve of Saanich, who recently returned here after fifteen years in New Zealand, was introduced by President Frank I. Doherty. Mr. Doherty also read a letter Mr. Jones brought from the Auckland Rotary Club.

CELEBRITY

Strange how fame affects people—at least in some cases:

Mrs. Murphy: "There is no living with William any more, since he became famous."

Mrs. Neerby: "I didn't how he had become famous. How did it happen?"

Mrs. Murphy: "He had his picture printed in the paper telling how he had been cured by liver pills and now he won't do a lick of work."

HEALTH INSURANCE PLEBISCITE

It is no small wonder that compulsory health insurance should be the policy of widest public concern in the present provincial election campaign. It is the most contentious policy developed during the course of the Pattullo Government's session of power. Up to the time the election was announced the conception was that the legislation would affect only a section of the people. Now it is designed, if the plebiscite is answered in the affirmative, to include everybody. The principle is to be "progressively applied." The Government is anxious to build up a new bureaucracy comprising hundreds of persons who will be political appointees. Bureaucracy is a modern political development designed to cement the fortunes of the party in power.

Health insurance, compulsorily enforced, is a method of governmental meddling with what is purely a domestic concern. How many people are willing to subscribe to the regulation that they must consult a general practitioner before they place themselves in the hands of a specialist to have ministrations to some specific complaint? Very few, we imagine, and there are fewer still who want their physical fortunes reposed in the care of a doctor who has hundreds of other patients and who can give only cursory attention to each of them, perhaps no attention to some at all on occasion through the pressure of work. There is, too, the situation in British Columbia that insufficient hospital accommodation is available, even under the present dispensation. Wherever compulsory health insurance is in effect it has meant an increased demand for hospitalization. People who pay taxes for health insurance will be determined to get value. They will go to hospital for treatment in connection with illness which now they have dealt with at home. The problem of providing hospital accommodation for the beneficiaries of compulsory health insurance has been given no consideration in the governmental plans devised to put the scheme into effect.

Premier Pattullo advocates compulsory health insurance. He wants it "progressively applied" until it embraces everyone. It is a plank in the Provincial Government's platform, just as it was a plank of the Liberals in the last election campaign. It is a part of a policy of interference with individual freedom, a policy that obtained its most arrogant expression in the Special Powers Act of the present Provincial Government. That Act was never enforced, because it ran counter to public opinion. Health insurance legislation, similarly, was never enforced because it could not be made operative. Any legislation which remains a dead letter on the statute books is usually of a character for which there is no public demand. That is the case with compulsory health insurance. The people do not want this new taxation for benefits which are only temporary and definitely restricted. They do not want the tax because it is discriminatory, inasmuch as it taxes those who do not benefit, and taxes some more than others for benefits that are equal. That is a wholly false principle of taxation in connection with any form of insurance of the social variety. If there is to be health insurance it should be optional and contributed to only by those who will benefit, and in an equal amount for equal benefits.

The fact that cannot be evaded is that the present health insurance legislation is inoperative because the taxation it implies is insufficient to provide for the benefits it promises. That means that if the people vote in the affirmative on the plebiscite they will be voting for impost, over and above those set forth in the present Act. In any case they will be voting to be taxed for partial health insurance, for the Government cannot pretend that its purpose is to give blanket coverage for all the ills of all the beneficiaries under the scheme. The legislation restricts the period of hospitalization, not taking into account at all the long drawn-out incidence of serious illness. It leaves patients, who have paid their insurance taxes, with the prospect of still having to continue to pay out of their own pockets much, and perhaps the greatest proportion of the fees desirable to meet the cases of serious disability. People, therefore, who vote "yes" on the forthcoming plebiscite will be voting for a measure that is partial, that is half-baked, that has met with the condemnation of the medical profession, and that obviously only gives a foretaste of the taxes yet to come. They will be voting, too, for regimentation affecting their physical ills. In a freedom-loving people the answer to the plebiscite should be emphatically in the negative. We are persuaded that there is no general desire in British Columbia for governmental interference with what should be purely a domestic affair.

THE MAN WHO CROWNED THE KING

What manner of man was it who on Wednesday, simply and unaffectedly, yet with deep apostolic earnestness and profound conviction of the great seriousness of the ceremony, crowned Their Majesties in Westminster Abbey. The Most Rev Cosmo Gordon Lang seems destined to go down in history as one of the greatest of Primates. He is a Scotsman who was born a Presbyterian and his father had been Moderator of the Church of Scotland. It was the law that attracted the Archbishop, and he was a student at the Inner Temple, but the Church called him with an insistent voice, and it was Oxford that profoundly affected him in this particular, for it was there that he seems to have imbibed the doctrines of the Church of England, which he entered in 1880. After service in this Church at Leeds, Oxford, and Portsea he earned the recognition of the late Queen Victoria, who made him one of her honorary chaplains, and it was in that position that he became known to the late King George and Queen Mary, and the royal friendship was extended to him for over forty years. His steps toward the See of Canterbury took him to St. Paul's as Canon, to Stepney as Bishop and then to the Archbishopric of York in 1908. He was only 44 years of age then, and the youngest Primate of England in centuries. In 1928 he was chosen as Archbishop of Canterbury.

He has in his great post, with its responsibilities, embodied the Church of England's finest and noblest traditions. As Archbishop of York, he had made his mark as a national figure, and during the Great War his stirring addresses and pulpit exhortations were of great assistance in that time of crisis and tension. He is a man with a stately figure and a delightful personality, capable always of rising to the heights of any great occasion. It was he who gave such a memorable and moving account to the House of Lords of the last hours of the late King George V at Sandringham. He is the man who, a few months ago, proclaimed a "Recall to Religion" which stirred the nation in a way it has not been stirred for many years. Those who heard him during the Coronation Service at Westminster Abbey must have been deeply impressed by the profound sincerity of his utterance of the ritual with which kings are crowned, and the manner in which he fitted in to the solemnity of that great ceremony. Dr. Lang's career is a part of the progress of latter-day Christianity. He is a great figure, richly endowed with all those graces that go with Christian leadership.

MRS. D. R. KER

A respected old-time resident, one keenly interested in philanthropic work in the city, has gone to her rest in the death of Mrs. D. R. Ker. There are many institutions here who know of her benevolence and her good work during long years, and know, too, of the broad outlook and the Christian spirit that were hers. She was a lady possessed of many virtues and of characteristics that evoked admiration, one of the type that means much, for she loved, and was willing, wherever possible to aid her fellows. The host of friends of the late Mrs. Ker in this city and throughout the Province will extend deepest sympathy to her sons, her daughters and her mother, as well as the other surviving members of a family so well known and so well thought of in the community.

TIES OF BLOOD

The red tie of blood binds every man to every other. We are all pages in Adam's book. The life of the race lives in us all. We are older than our years. Our lives did not begin at birth. Old, old, world-old passions, appetites, tendencies, form part of the house and furniture of every human soul. No soul has a perfectly clean or perfectly new house, or has for a single hour the whole house of life to itself. The blood in our veins carries in solution vice and virtue, folly and strength, from the immortal past to our lives. We are related to the race; and a group of urgent duties spring out of this relation.—G. W. Gilton.

CLOAK OF KINDNESS

A question we may ask ourselves is: What cloak of kindness have I woven out of my faith which some uncovered soul might be willing to borrow from me? No mechanical loom for weaving sympathy exists. It must be woven strand by strand; nor can it be an easy matter to wrap it round another so humanly that he will accept it without demur. Nevertheless, when to a shrinking life another's tactfulness proves soft to the touch as love itself, he will accept it, though to him all mere righteousness might be as filthy rags.

—J. M. B.

HUMAN AND DIVINE

It is that deep principle of all true life which represents the affinity—latent, oppressed by circumstances, repressed by sin, but always there—between our human nature and the Divine, and through subjection to which we reassume our birthright as "the sons of God"; conscience to see, and will to choose—not what shall please ourselves, but—the highest and purest aim that life presents to us.—J. C. Brown.

Believe nothing against another but upon good authority, nor repeat what may hurt another.

—W. Penn.

Christian graces are like perfumes—the more they are pressed, the sweeter they smell.—Scott.

J. P. Morgan Is Ill in England

LONDON, May 13 (AP).—J. P. Morgan, the New York financier, was disclosed today to have suffered a heart attack that kept him from attending the Coronation ceremonies yesterday in Westminster Abbey.

Thomas W. Lamont, one of his New York partners, said Morgan was better and that he planned to return to the United States within two weeks.

Note and Comment

By Sandham Graves

For the first time so far as I am at present aware, a straight commercial airplane flight has taken place over the Atlantic Ocean from this continent to Great Britain. Two Americans hopped off from Floyd Bennett airfield the other day for Croydon, where they landed safely later with photographs of the burning of the ship Hindenburg. They were to pick up in England photographs of the Coronation, and carry these back to New York. As this is being written the flyers have just taken off with their return cargo from Britain. Interesting as that was, there was a small line attached to news accounts describing the flight which meant a great deal. Chief Pilot Merrill said the eastward trip had been made in heavy weather, with instrument flying necessary all the way. That, in short, is commercial air navigation. It is a poignant coincidence that the triumph of the plane in this instance was also a record of the disaster of a dirigible that had completed twenty-one flights over the blustery Atlantic without previous mishap. Nations having helium in their possession are fortunate, and from the standpoint of civilian aviation may not have to share some of this benefit with the world.

In the hackneyed vein of those too lazy to think for themselves, writers still talk about a bull in a china shop. Believe me, the most ferocious bull at large in the most delicate of china shops would be a graceful, orderly animal compared with two dogs at a public celebration; the bull would win all diplomatics for deportment. The other day, on an occasion that need not be identified, I watched a spaniel and a retriever mix things up for as pretty a celebration as one could ever hope to witness. The spaniel started off, by strolling out from behind crowds lining a curb and sniffing interestedly at the polish on the boots of a soldier. I think the spaniel tried an experimental lick or two; because a look of acute pain crossed the face of the soldier, together with a sideways motion of the right foot which undoubtedly would have been a fore-and-aft action if the soldier had not been standing with his rifle at the "present." Did that stop the spaniel? It did not. The spaniel went clean up the whole front rank of soldiers, all at the "present," and sampled every second pair of boots in the platoon. Someone started firing then, and the spaniel scampered off with the air of a dog that was hunting quail, on a city boulevard. When next I saw the spaniel he was playing nip-and-run with a retriever. He had just jumped, in fact. Then the chase began. The retriever had a little the edge in speed, but the spaniel was artful. The spaniel darted in between a company of scouts and a platoon of cadets, emerging in the rear of a double rank of engineers. The retriever saw him there, and gave chase and tongue. It was keen, while it lasted. I took my eyes off the dogs, and lost sight of them for a while. Later I found them again, however, and this time they were staging a wrestling match in the most reserved square in the parade ground. The retriever won two straight falls, and then with their tongues lolling out, the two dogs rested. Then we finished the ceremony.

The dogs were not alone in the unscheduled demonstrations, as it happened. Right in the middle of the most impressive part of the whole proceedings, when every ear was bent to catch words spoken into a microphone more than 6,000 miles away, a tugboat upstream from the railway bridge whistled three times with a persistent and irritating drawl. The bascule bridge blew a small siren in response. Nor was this all, for right in the inner basin, almost within biscuit toss of the actual ceremony, a few minutes later another tugboat blew off steam, twice, with a whistling roar lasting thirty seconds on each occasion. Towboats and dogs, there seems to be something inherent in them; a kind of hoot-to-you-mon, that forms an irresistible link to irreverent expression at the most solemn moments. At that, towboat crews can read the time on the face of a clock, and this was an advertised ceremony. As for the dogs, well it's just like I said, worse than a bull in a china shop are two dogs at a public celebration.

The Observation Car

By THE EDITORIAL STAFF

Very Petty Larceny

While criminals in England "took a day off" for the Coronation, only three felonies have been reported for the day in London and its environs, petty thieves in Victoria were unusually busy—and petty. Two members of this editorial staff who had their roadsters decorated with small flags in honor of the occasion had these little loyal decorations stolen almost as soon as the cars were parked outside the office.—R.L.P.

Our Individual King

An American tourist being driven around Victoria on Coronation Day was surprised to see such throngs of people and gala decorations, especially at the Parliament Buildings. Asking a taxi driver for an explanation, she was told "We are crowning our King," whereupon she replied, "How strange—to bring him all this way to crown him."—M.R.

The Pretender

We listened in the dark to the Coronation ceremony and watched the night pass away into dawn. It was, in effect, the dawn of a new life for His Majesty and the Queen, though I did not think of that, nor of the King who was. I considered a man not many miles away on this island, who claims direct descent from the Norman kings, and declares that he, and not the King, should be sitting on the Empire's throne. He who sits on the throne at times such as these and is forgotten when the tumult dies. This claimant, however, wrote direct to Downing Street and to many members of the Imperial Commons. He was advised to address his correspondence to the Governor-General, so it would be submitted in due course to the proper authorities. We never heard if he had done so, though perhaps it might have been a job for the King's Champion if he had. But despite shadowy threats from this West and the more publicized pretender in England, the King is crowned, and there is no more to be said.—B.G.

Sergeant Had Grown

When a popular Work Point sergeant overhauled his "soup and fish" party to attending a ball at the barracks he found certain changes had taken place in his anatomy since the last time he was evening attire. He was forced to have his trousers let out three inches and the vest out four inches. He also found his dress shirt was far too small for comfort. While paying a visit to Aubrey's club, the sergeant wanted to know if he could borrow a shirt for the evening. But Aubrey's shirt was a size eleven and built like a pup tent. The sergeant was accompanied by his two Dachshunds, better known as "German sausage dogs." Jack, the jovial janitor, soon spied the hounds and remarked: "Lor luv a duck! Wouldn't them two look cute covered by a couple o' slices o' bread."
One day, Ernest, of Little Saanich Mountain, was paid a visit by his girl friend. Instead of driving her home he sped to Lake Hill. They missed the last bus in the city. By a matter of a few seconds. For some strange reason Ernest drove all the way back to the mountain top and ordered a taxi to take the girl to her destination.
Spotted girl—A Vancouver Island newspaper: Wore a bowler hat, black coat and "stripped" trousers. If stripped means thin in the seat the description could almost fit us.—G.B.

Glancing Over Sport

There seems to be no stopping the Edmonton Grads basketball squad. The other night they toppled a much-touted Wichita quintette from across the border with comparative ease in the first of the Underwood Trophy series. I wonder just what Coach Percy Page has got that other mentors of women's teams seem to lack.
Victoria United were certainly outclassed by North Shore in that Coronation Day soccer game, despite the fact the score was 3-2 for the visitors. If that Mainland team sticks together they will not be far off from the Connaught Cup, symbolic of the Dominion honors this season. Is the opinion of Victorians after seeing them in action.
This Big Ben Morgan, who is wrestling here—Saturday, and weighs 350 pounds, is the boy who introduced something new to the mat patrons when he entered the grunt-and-groan pastime. He used to enter the ring with a pet monkey on his shoulders and attired in his working overalls. He left the monkey in his corner while out on the canvas grunting and growling.
What a record Dirty Dean is going to establish in major baseball this season if he continues to keep up the pace he is now setting. And what a headache Owner Sam Brandon of the Cards is going to have if he does, for the "Dir" will demand the State Capitol to sign up next year.—J.D.

LIBERTY OF THE PRODUCER

Sir,—May I have the privilege of commenting on the editorial in your paper on "Marketing Control"? It is generally conceded that most people can say something convincing about a subject of which they have practical knowledge. I am therefore encouraged to state a few facts about grain and vegetable production, having farmed for thirty years.

Any practical farmer will tell you that wheat cannot be grown under 60 cents a bushel (cost), and yet repeatedly, when it looks as if a crop is in sight, the price is immediately forced down by gamblers in the market. Wall Street, etc., to the lowest possible level. In the fall the farmer has to meet his obligations for wages, threshing, a possible overdraft at the bank and so has to sell, often at a ruinous price.

No sooner is the visible supply acquired than up goes the price, and who benefits? The speculator who sits in an office chair, and with the help of his brethren, dictates the price of an article he has had no part whatever in producing. The price, of course, is governed to a certain degree by the law of supply and demand, but we all know that is not what is radically wrong with our system. The farmer is the only man who has no voice in fixing the price of what he produces. Modern farming is no longer just manual labor; it needs brains and education, and technical knowledge of soil culture, stockbreeding, etc., to make a success.

Therefore when one comes up against a hold-up like the "Marketing Board," camouflaged under the slogan "to improve the position of the producer," well, one's guesses. By the time the middle-man has feathered his nest and all the other gentlemen of leisure have taken their toll, what does the actual producer get? Hot air and not enough to keep body and soul together.

If one could have a bloodless revolution, this is the sort of thing to produce it. The private liberty of the citizen is interfered with and all personal rights taken away. Mussolini and Hitler have nothing on us when it comes to such methods.

I heard of a widow, who had, by personal labor, a fine crop of potatoes to sell. She took them where in previous years she had always got a fair price, but now by the time the "Marketing Board" had finished with her she got fourteen cents less than the price she had been offered.

Such things should not be tolerated, and so instead of talking about "the producer," vigorous steps should be taken to at once do away with this interference with the personal liberty of the producers.

QUEEN-VICTORIA'S STATUE

Sir,—I am interested in the picture you give today (April 29) of the cleaning up of the Victoria Memorial in front of Buckingham Palace. The picture shows the statue of the Queen Victoria in the foreground, and the statue of the Prince of Wales in the background. The statue of the Queen Victoria is a magnificent work of art, and the statue of the Prince of Wales is a fine example of modern sculpture. The cleaning up of the statue of the Queen Victoria is a task of great importance, and the statue of the Prince of Wales is a fine example of modern sculpture. COMPULSORY HEALTH INSURANCE

Sir,—The above question is an excellent illustration of party politics as practiced today, by which the real objective of a democratic government that "the will of the people" shall prevail, is thwarted by their being invited to give the support of their vote to something—the results of which they cannot possibly understand. Since the people do not understand the results of what they are asked to vote for it cannot truly be said that their will is being put into operation. It is thus evident that only primary issues should be placed before an electorate, the results of which they can understand, and desire to bring into being—thus becoming unified.

In fact, the people become initiators of policy, deciding "what shall be done," leaving to the Administration "how it shall be done" through the expert.

Now, compulsory health insurance is a secondary issue, because it is merely a symptom of "lack of money," lack of money being the

The utmost, should it be returned to power. Willy-nilly whether you want it or not it is determined to ram it down your throat. The same fanatical determination used to compel the members of the Liberal party to toe the line and push the measure through is yet in evidence; it is now law and it is going to stay law, unless you vote "No" to both its Liberal sponsors and their plebiscite.

Can you imagine a party with so little to consider outside this unwanted issue, that it cannot offer one real constructive plank in its election platform? With the innumerable worthwhile progressive projects that these super men are supposedly capable of handling for the good of the province, they offer for your serious consideration a catch-penny question and nothing else.

Their record for the past three years is one of inefficient extravagance. They have not done anything of consequence during their term of office; they have nothing to show; not being capable of holding office they have nothing to offer. The more fortunate members of society should remember that above the $1,800 a year class, who in the event of the return of the Liberal party, would probably be drawn into the Health Insurance scheme, would have to pay more for equal benefits. A man getting $50 a week would be compelled to pay $4 a month into the coffers for these same men to handle, in the same manner as $100,000 has now been wasted.

Dr. Weir's plea that we insure our lives, our cars and our houses is true, but we can please ourselves, knowing full well that we will get full value, perhaps more, should we need it, and are not paying fat salaries to friends of the party.

THIS experience illustrated actually happened (we changed the names of course!). It was taken from one of the thousands of letters that come to the makers of Lifebuoy. Overwhelming evidence of the seriousness of "B.O." (body odour)—and of the foolishness of people who take chances.

Bathe regularly with Lifebuoy. Its abundant penetrating lather purifies, deodorizes. Its own fresh scent rinses away.

Freshens, clears complexions

Lifebuoy's deeper, gentler cleansing gives new life, glowing freshness to tired dull skin. Real protection to fine skin. "Patch" tests on the skins of hundreds of women prove it's more than 20% milder than many so-called "beauty soaps."

URGES BETTER TRADE POLICY

Byron Johnson, Liberal Candidate, Outlines Conditions in British Columbia

"It is utterly impossible for British Columbia to continue the policy of buying in a high price market and selling in a cheap one, and the only way to overcome that unfavorable condition is to create a department of trade and commerce here which, I understand, the Liberal Government intends to do when re-elected," declared Byron Johnson, member of the last Legislature, addressing an audience at Quadra School last night. Mr. Johnson is one of the four Liberal candidates in the Victoria four-seat riding.

Mr. Johnson warned that it might be necessary, if Eastern manufacturers failed to realize the position of British Columbia in relation to trade, to encourage "our own people to purchase in markets of countries that were favorable to the province." He quoted figures of export and imports in an endeavor to show the unfairness of the province's position. Something should be done, he said, to force Eastern manufacturers to locate their plants in British Columbia.

TOURIST INDUSTRY

There were two other candidates on the platform, William T. Straith, at present a member of the Victoria City Council, and Mrs. H. P. Hodges, both of whom spoke briefly on the achievements of the Pattullo Government. Alderman Straith dealt mainly with the value of the tourist industry and the necessity of good roads throughout the province. He mentioned particularly the decision of the Government to immediately complete the road to Port Renfrew so as to give Victoria merchants an opportunity to compete with the Mainland for business of shipping supplies to lumbering and other operations.

Alderman Straith said that the tourist industry was one of the four major industries in the Dominion. In 1936, Government figures estimated the value of the tourist trade to Canada as $202,000,000, of which Victoria was estimated to have received $2,820,000. He stated the Provincial Government, during its term of office, had fully realized the value of the tourist industry and had contributed generously in cash grants and through the Provincial Bureau towards publicity. He also mentioned the recent grant of $25,000 to Victoria's Jubilee celebration committee. Victoria needed the tourist industry in order to bring additional capital to replace that lost through the closing down of various industries.

He intimated the Government, headed by Premier Pattullo, would deal generously with the Capital City in the matter of providing aids to increase tourist traffic with the view that every tourist is a potential resident of the future.

SOCIAL SERVICES

Mrs. Hodges discussed matters related to social services and more particularly those concerning labor. She stated that in Canada, as well as in the Old Country, it was difficult to single out one piece of social legislation that had not been sponsored by a Liberal Government. During the last Conservative Government's term, she said, grants to hospitals had been curtailed and "at a time when additional services of hospitalization were required because of conditions." The Liberal Government had been able to restore those grants and had taken the lead in formulating a new policy of preventive medicine and a system whereby indigents could be cared for in institutions in cases when their ailments did not require constant hospitalization. Mrs. Hodges also referred to the generous increase in mothers' pensions by the Liberal administration. Those things, she said, were achievements and were more valuable than promises.

Charles Copeland, former president of Ward Two Liberals, spoke briefly and Dr. Hugh Clarke was the chairman.

LEAVES MANY FRIENDS HERE

Mrs. Laura Agnes Ker Passes Away in England—Was Born in Victoria

Information was received here yesterday, by cablegram from England, of the death of Mrs. Laura Agnes Ker, who passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. C. Hubbard, at East Rainham, Kent, where she had been visiting for the past year. Death was the outcome of a seizure she suffered some time ago, and her condition became so grave a fortnight ago that one of her sons, R. H. B. Ker, left on Tuesday, April 27, for the Old Land in the hope of reaching her side before the end came.

Born in Victoria, September 23, 1874, she was the daughter of Mrs. L. A. Heisterman, of Shasta Avenue, and the late Mr. H. F. Heisterman, and was very well known and affectionately esteemed by a wide circle of friends here. She was educated in this city, and in June, 1894, was married to David Russell Ker, their home for many years being the big house at the corner of Fernwood Road and Yates Street, where all their children were born. After Mr. Ker's death, which occurred in July, 1923, she moved into her new home at 841 St. Charles Street.

PHILANTHROPIC WORK

For many years Mrs. Ker took an active interest in patriotic, church and philanthropic movements in the city. During the war she worked untiringly for the Red Cross Society; she was associated for years with the Connaught Seamen's Institute, the Women's Auxiliary to the Royal Jubilee Hospital, and the I.O.D.E., and had been a life-long member of St. John's Church and for many years an active worker in its Ladies' Guild. Both in these affiliations and in her more personal friendships she was known for her generous sympathies and great charm.

She is survived by her four children, R. H. B. Ker and B. R. Ker, both of Victoria; Mrs. David Braide, wife of Lieutenant-Colonel R. W. Braide, Quetta, India, and Mrs. Inez Hubbard, wife of Lieut. J. C. Hubbard, R.C.N., who is at present stationed in England. Mr. and Mrs. R. H. B. Ker and Mrs. Hubbard were with her at the time of her death. There are also eight grandchildren; her mother, Mrs. L. A. Heisterman; two brothers, B. S. Heisterman and H. G. S. Heisterman, and one sister, Miss O. I. Heisterman, all living in Victoria.

FATHER AND SON ARE CORONATION BABIES

EDMONTON, May 13.—Mrs. William Young, of Edmonton, whose husband was born June 22, 1911, the day George V was crowned, gave birth to a son here yesterday while that monarch's son, George VI, was being crowned in Westminster Abbey.

Two neighboring villages were due to play each other and the rivalry was intense. The publication of one village offered a pint of beer to each man on the team for every goal it scored.

Not to be outdone, the publication of the other village made a similar offer.

At half-time one publication sent his boy to find out the score. The boy came back with the following report:

"It's a very close game, sir. We're leading by 23 goals to 22!"

How to Overcome Piles and Rectal Soreness

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness, or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning, and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from MacFarlane and Vancouver/Druse Stores, or any drugstore, a package of Hemorrhoid and Rectal Soreness Remedy. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness, and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemorrhoid is a physician's prescription, and is highly recommended. It is easy to use, and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is as pleasant to use, may be had at such a reasonable cost.

DEATH REMOVES REV. W. L. MACRAE

Missionary to East Indians Passes On Mainland—Formerly Resided in Victoria

Reverend W. L. Macrae, whose death occurred on Tuesday evening at his home in Vancouver, was well known here for his interest in the welfare of the East Indians of Victoria and Up-Island, during ten years of residence in this city.

Mr. Macrae, who was born in Nova Scotia in 1855, graduated from Dalhousie University and Pine Hill College, Halifax, in 1886. Ordained in October of the same year, he was sent as a missionary of the Presbyterian Church in Canada to the East Indians in the Island of Trinidad, where he labored until 1905. Here he was associated for ten years in missionary work with Rev. Dr. S. A. Fraser, now of this city. His earnest devotion to the spiritual interests of the East Indians there resulted in many conversions to Christianity.

MISSIONARY-AT-LARGE

Compelled by ill-health to return to Canada, Mr. Macrae was minister for a number of years of the Presbyterian congregation at Golden, B.C. His health restored, he settled in Victoria as a centre from which he ministered as a missionary-at-large to the East Indians of the whole province.

His interest in his constituency was many-sided. He wrote letters, signed passports, acted as interpreter and proved himself a valued friend as well as a spiritual adviser. It is recognized that Mr. Macrae exercised a helpful influence in the relationships of the East Indian population and the Government.

Leaving Victoria in 1924, Mr. Macrae carried on a similar ministry on the Mainland. Though re-annuated in 1935, he continued his faithful work.

He is survived by his widow and daughter, Jean, at 1476 Fourteenth Avenue West, Vancouver; and two sons, John, residing in Detroit, and Dr. Harry B., in Toronto. The funeral service will be held on Saturday, at 2 p.m., in which Dr. S. A. Fraser, of this city, will take part.

ACCORDING TO FORMULA

Poor Prof.—What's the formula for water, Jones?

"H I J K L M N O," spelled out the scholar.

"What's that?" barked the master. The scholar slowly repeated the letters.

"Whatever are you driving at?" said the master. "What gave you that idea?"

"You, sir," said Jones. "You said yesterday it was H to O."

the safety and comfort of a vast concourse of spectators.

Great credit is due to members of the police forces concerned for the unflinching patience and tact shown by them in the performance of their long and tiring task—a task in which, as usual, they have been assisted by the orderliness and good humor of the crowds themselves.

OTHERS ARE THANKED

The Queen and I wish also to pay tribute to the devoted services given by their fellow citizens through the long day by members of voluntary organizations, in particular, the St. John Ambulance Brigade, the British Red Cross Association and the Boy Scouts Association.

Finally, we would like to say how greatly we admired the decorations in the streets. We congratulate the responsible authorities and householders, and we are touched by the thought that all over the country so much care had been devoted by our people to decorating their homes in celebration of this day.

For all the help so willingly given to insure the success of the Coronation ceremonies, the Queen and I tender our heartfelt thanks.

Weddings

SHEPHERD-SUMNER
St. Paul's Naval and Garrison Church, Esquimalt, was the scene of a quiet wedding at high noon on Wednesday, when Rev. Alan Gardner united in matrimony Patricia Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. C. Sumner, Vancouver, and Mr. Francis H. Shepherd, Vancouver, formerly of Victoria, son of the late Capt. and Mrs. Edward H. Shepherd, Hamilton, Ont. The bride was given in marriage by Mr. D. B. Robinson, Admirals' Road, Esquimalt, and wore a smart white tailored three-piece flannel suit, with which she wore a powder blue georgette blouse, a small white felt hat and carried a bouquet of red carnations. She was attended by Miss Peggy Daugherty, Vancouver, wearing a white woolen suit, a powder blue felt hat and a corsage bouquet of roses. The bridegroom was supported by his

EXPECTANT MOTHERS

WOMEN who suffer periodically, who may have headache or those about to become mothers, will find Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription a dependable tonic. Read what Mrs. Alfred White of 23 Palmer St., Guilford, Ont., said: "Before the arrival of my little girl I was in miserable health. I felt weak and tired all the time, suffered from pains in my back and had dizzy spells. I felt so discouraged, being unable to do my housework. I wondered if I would ever be well again. That's when I started taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it strengthened me in every way." Buy now of your nearby druggist.

"What I want to know is where has Paddy the Beaver been all Summer?" said Billy Mink. "Nobody seems to have seen him. I went up to his old dam three times, but there wasn't any pond up there then and I didn't see anything of him around."

"He said that he had found a splendid hole in the bank that time when he came down the Laughing Brook with us in the Spring," said Spotty the Turtle. "Perhaps he has been hiding there all Summer."

"Perhaps he hasn't," replied Billy Mink scornfully. "Don't you suppose that with all the traveling I do up and down the Laughing Brook I'd have known of it if he had?"

"Perhaps he was out seeing the Great World like Grandfather Frog," Jerry Muskrat suggested.

"If he was he'd know enough now never to go again," grunted Grandfather Frog. "Everybody smiled for he tickled his friends to hear Grandfather Frog insist that he knew all about the Great World when they knew that despite all his adventures he really had, had no more than a peep at a very tiny bit of it. But they couldn't make Grandfather Frog believe this. No, sir! He firmly believed that he had seen the Great World and that it wasn't to be compared with the dear old Smiling Pool."

"Well, I don't know as it matters much where Paddy the Beaver has been all Summer," said Little Joe Otter. "What does matter is the fact that he is somewhere up the Laughing Brook this minute and he says that he is going to make a new pond way back in the Green Forest. I don't see why the Smiling Pool isn't good enough for him, but if he wants to take the trouble to make a new pond I don't know as I have any objection. I wonder if he has begun work yet."

Jerry Muskrat had been looking very sharply at the bank on which Little Joe was sitting. "I think he has," said Jerry.

"What makes you think so?" asked Billy Mink. "I think myself that he is just a great big boaster and gave us that warning that he was going to stop the water running

"I-I guess he did mean it after all, and he must be at work right now," said Billy Mink.

In the Laughing Brook just to give us a scare."

Jerry didn't reply. He just pointed to the bank. Everybody looked and they could hardly believe their eyes when they saw a wet line running all the way along the bank which showed that the water was not as high as it had been. They just stared and stared with eyes and mouths wide open, and even while they looked the water dropped ever so little.

"I-I guess he did mean it after all and he must be at work right now," said Billy Mink slowly as if it were hard work to believe what he was saying. "I think it is time we went up to see what is going on."

With that he started up the Laughing Brook and all the rest followed, that is all but Grandfather Frog. Spotty the Turtle looked back and saw him still sitting on his big green lily-pod. "Aren't you coming?" he called.

"No," replied Grandfather Frog. "I was foolish enough to leave the Smiling Pool and I'll never do it again, no matter what happens."

And so they left him sitting on his big green lily-pod watching the Smiling Pool grow smaller and smaller. It was strangely still there. There was no one for company, excepting a few of his great grandchildren, the Tadpoles. Even the trout had started up the

Dance at Brentwood

"The Anchorage," Brentwood Bay, was the setting for a delightful dance given on Monday evening by Misses Joyce Thomson and Valentine Harlock in honor of Miss Buntie Sloan, who is leaving shortly for Vancouver. Hostesses at Shower

Mrs. J. Walsh and Mrs. H. Rumsby entertained last evening at the latter's home on McKenzie Street, at a miscellaneous shower given in honor of Miss Jessie Jones, a much-feted May bride-to-be. As she entered the reception-room, which was gay with tulips, narcissi and blue-bells carrying out the Coronation colors, Miss Jones was presented with a lovely bouquet of pink tulips and fern. The many pretty and useful gifts were found in a "wishing well" decorated with crepe paper in the color scheme of red, white and blue. The guests played cards and games during the evening. The supper table, covered with a dainty white cloth, was centered with red tulips in a cut glass bowl and lighted by red tapers in matching scones. Those present were Mesdames T. C. Jones, W. J. Hooper, W. Brown, J. B. Dron, G. Hyne, H. Whitfield, W. H. Carter, J. Dixon, W. Clare, J. Barrister, G. Williams, W. Cott, Burnett, R. Brown, Davis, and Misses Isabel Dron, Lillian Hawthorne, Tina McKinnon, Jessie Dron, Brenda Carter, Mable Hawthorne, Marguerite Elliott, Jean Burnett, Bessie Crother and Florence Jones.

Presentation Shower

Miss Nestie Mitchell was the guest of honor last evening at a presentation shower given by Mrs. J. Chapman, Jr., and Miss Nellie Loftis at Miss Loftis' home on Selkirk Street. On her arrival, the bride-elect was given a lovely corsage bouquet of lilies of the valley and pink rosebuds. Later the guests conveyed best wishes to Miss Mitchell, together with their gift of a handsome Kenwood reversible blanket wrapped in the Coronation colors. Quantities of narcissi were used in decoration of the reception rooms. Games were played and later a buffet supper was served from a table with an attractive centerpiece composed of red tulips and narcissi in a low vase. The invited guests were Mrs. W. G. Mitchell, Mrs. A. H. Loftis, Mrs. F. T. Scafe, Mrs. G. Barker, Mrs. E. Miner, Mrs. Lillian Taylor, Mrs. Kelly, Mrs. W. Yeamans, Mrs. Ball, and Misses Evelyn Pollock, Lillian Laird, Violet Rowlands, Doris Smith, Mary Laird, Ina Mitchell, Jessie Oliver, Eva Gross, Ella Mitchell, Kathleen Barker, Aldridge; walk the line, Miss Betty Fawcett and Mr. S. Waldron; football, the men. During supper, Mr. James McVie sang "The Rose of Tralee" and "Will You Remember Me?" from "Maytime." The monthly whist drive will be held tomorrow at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Norman, 1307 Lyall Street.

ELOCUTION

Sir,—I should like to comment upon the splendid interest shown by Vancouver in our Victoria Musical Festival. In elocution classes alone there were nearly sixty competitors from Vancouver. I recognized many of them as competing year after year in the British Columbia Musical Festival at Vancouver, and they deserve the success which usually comes to crown consistent and painstaking effort. That Victoria has its students of this inspiring type is certain, and prominent among them is Catherine Craig, who began her career with speech training, and after winning gold and silver medals was awarded a year's scholarship at the Victoria School of Expression in 1928, winning honours in 1929 in Trinity College, London, examinations. As a student of the Dominion Academy of Music she has continued her studies, the result of talent properly developed by good teaching and continuous hard work.

Students of the highest type in the Province owe a great deal to the music festivals. For example, at the British Columbia Musical Festival of 1924 there were seventeen competitors in elocution, but this year there are 488 entries in this subject, the increase being largely due to the fact that the musical festivals have included elocution in their competitions. Vancouver is to be congratulated on its lively and progressive interest in the speech arts. At least four private schools employ a teacher of elocution, and there are at least eight verse-speaking choirs in the public schools, taught by special teachers. In 1934 the speech arts teachers of Vancouver formed a federation, and I had the honor to be elected as their first president, and gained much inspiration from constant contact with enthusiastic teachers of speech training.

In connection with this lively and progressive interest taken by Vancouver in the speech arts, it is significant to note that on three occasions the award for the best actress in the Dominion Drama Festival at Ottawa has been won by a Vancouver girl, and in each case she had developed natural gifts by prolonged study of speech training. I have also heard the lady who won the best actress trophy in the senior section of the British Columbia Drama Festival this year taking part in elocution competitions. Last year I heard a great dramatic teacher warn students against elocution, although 75 per cent of them needed speech training, a fact which he readily admitted.

I wish, therefore, that the elocution contests in our Victoria Musical Festival could be renamed, as this, the oldest of the arts, is more readily caricatured than any other, so that artistic people might shy of elocution, because it is associated with pedantry, affectation and unnaturalness. It must be admitted, however, that speaking talent needs as much help in its development as musical talent does, and musical festivals as well as the radio and talking pictures are emphasizing this fact more and more every day.

I conclude with the hope that the splendid and inspiring interest shown by the Vancouver students in the Victoria elocution competitions may inspire the Victoria students, so that our hard-working Victoria committee may be encouraged by an increase in the number of entries in the elocution contests next year, and that they will compare favorably with the increase in numbers entering these competitions in the British Columbia Musical Festival at Vancouver.

SOCIAL CREDIT

Sir,—For the benefit of those of your readers who might be misled by them, I ask your permission to correct the misstatements concerning Social Credit made by C. Law in a recent letter in The Colonist. I will endeavor to take up his points in order. He writes: "We have only to turn to Alberta to see the result which is inevitable when such schemes are permitted." There is no Social Credit in Alberta, and the Aberhart Government has not yet taken the necessary steps toward it.

Mr. Law suggests that the "defaults, confiscation and increased taxation" in Alberta are in some way connected with Social Credit. Aside from the fact that in these matters Mr. Aberhart is following precisely in the footsteps of all "sound money" governments, including our own in British Columbia, such things have no connection with Social Credit. If Mr. Aberhart had moved toward Social Credit instead of trying to avoid it, there would have been in Alberta no "defaults" and there would have been reduced taxation.

When Mr. Law states specifically that Aberhartism is Social Credit, he is, I regret to say, writing incorrectly. Likewise he twists the meaning of words when he states, in connection with the Social Credit draft scheme for Scotland that it means "confiscation of the individual, his means and private property."

In this draft scheme Douglas recommended that all property taxes be abolished. His recommendation was that a monetary credit be required for the operation of the plan, which was a special plan to work within the existing British money system, should be created on the basis of the capital assets and productivity of Scotland. On what else can money be based than upon the power of a community to produce the goods for which money is the means of exchange?

CURLY'S HARVESTERS

Sir,—Through the medium of your valuable paper I would like to express my appreciation for the only good programme on the local radio station. Congratulations to Curly's Harvesters and they have a lot of credit coming to them. This is not meant for an advertisement for them because I have never met any of them, but listen to them every Monday.

It is too bad that CPCT is not linked with the network and so give the rest of Canada a treat and a sample of what a group of young musicians can do with certainly not much encouragement here.

I was telling my friends in the country to listen to the boys, but as they live almost seven miles out they could not get reception on the powerful 50 watts: too bad. Victoria does not get the breaks, but just the breaks. Maybe there'll come a day.

SOCIAL CREDIT

Sir,—I was greatly amused at a letter written to you by Mr. J. P. Biggs on the subject of Social Credit. Presumably it was meant to be a defence of Social Credit ideas. The letter was chiefly concerned with calling you a liar, using the word "lie" no less than five times, and other expressions implying the same thing. Lying even at election time, is a very unpleasant habit, and

I trust, Mr. Editor, you will show yourself duly repented.

It has, however, occurred to me that Social Credit must be in rather a bad way if the only defence its supporters have is calling people who do not agree with them liars. We are all naturally interested in bettering conditions for the average man, but some of us have lived long enough to know that you can't get something for nothing in this world, and leave experiments such as Social Credit to "tub-thumpers" like Mr. Aberhart. F. LEWIN.

Little sister will be up bright and early to wear this cunning calico print peasant dirndl dress with puffed Tyrolean sleeves. She can put it on quite unaided. The buttons down the front encourage "self-help" training and make youngsters self independent individuals. She is certain to like the fetching square neck. The pattern also provides for her favorite Peter Pan collar.

The full-skirted peasant apron is edged with ric rac. It has two pockets that always add joy and interest. She'll adore it and want to wear it over all her other frocks. Picture this precious dirndl in crisp dotted Swiss, tissue gingham, organdie, bright dimity print, etc.

A detailed step-by-step sewing chart accompanies this easy to follow pattern.

Style No. 3311 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. Size 4 requires 2 yards of 35-inch material for dress with 1 7/8 yards of 35-inch material for apron, collar and cuffs, with 5/8 yards of bias.

Due to special arrangements made with the manufacturers, The Colonist is glad to announce a reduction in the price of its patterns from 50c to 15c. This price will be effective for all patterns ordered from this date.

will pay to be open-minded and willing to discuss any matter that requires a quick decision. Conserve your energy. In some unexpected manner you may be much better off in worldly possessions before another day is born. Should you be much sought after on this day, you will have to be diplomatic if you find it necessary to decline any invitation. Be careful, if you are in a crowd not to become involved in any quarrel, particularly if loss of temper is due to someone's pushing or comments. Offer no excuse that is not plausible, otherwise there is danger of its being questioned. Married and engaged couples, as well as those who have fallen victims of Cupid's darts, will be wise to show a willingness to co-operate in planning social diversions or discharging social obligations.

If a woman and May 14 is your birthday, you are more than likely a nature-lover and apt to be instinctively religious. The chances are you become restless if you do not get a chance to travel periodically. You are capable of planning social activities—that are unique. You may be rather impetuous, especially in matters that ought to receive a great deal of deliberation. You are quick to make friends and as a rule ought to be fortunate in your choice of them. As a teacher, musician, actress, real estate or insurance agent, publicity woman or journalist you should make a big financial success. Your home life, as a married woman, in all likelihood, will be very happy.

The child born on May 14, will perhaps give evidence, in its high school days, of having an unusual amount of common sense. Kindness will accomplish much more than strict discipline, as this youngster may be extremely sensitive.

If a man and May 14 is your natal day, you probably will have the opportunity to make some big money. As an architect, sales agent, author, commercial photographer or banker you may become a man of wealth.

MANITOBA PIONEER DEAD
BRANDON, Man., May 13 (C)—Perris Bolton, eighty-four, prominent Manitoba pioneer and former M.L.A. in the 1917 Manitoba Union Government, died here Tuesday at the home of his son, Dr. E. S. Bolton. He retired from politics in 1921.

WHAT PRICE HEALTH?

MANY years ago I said this: "If I could put my principles of health in pill form—so that people only had to swallow them to be healthy—I would be richer than Henry Ford in six months."

But it can't be done!

You can't play the piano without practicing. You can't have strong, vigorous, tireless and agile muscles without exercising—you can't be always youthful, full of mental and physical energy and ambition and exuberantly healthy, full of pep and the joy of living unless you are prepared to pay the price of right (righteous) living habits.

Don't attempt this unless you are in A1 condition.

Ask your health self "What is the price of perfect health?" then listen to the "still small voice" within you for the answer. The Answer? The price of health lies in doing certain things and in not doing other things. In other words, obey the health laws of Nature and of common sense.

These laws include a daily cool water bath, cool air bath, sun bath, exercise of all muscle groups for at least fifteen minutes, avoidance of all habits that do not add something of body normalizing value to the blood; evacuation of the intestinal waste after each meal by the use of correct foods and exercise; sufficient sleep, but not too much, in a well-ventilated room; and a poised, hopeful, optimistic mental state.

Based upon the foregoing principles, I started at 50 to rebuild a hopelessly broken and decrepit body. In my 80th year I have a body that ought to be the envy of 95% of men in their twenties. At 71 I started a new career and have made a striking success of it already. Are such accomplishments worth while? Again let the "still small voice" answer. The proper way to start? A real health education. Write for particulars re my books that provide it.

Not interested? Well, "it's O.K. with me." I lose nothing by your decision. But let me urge you to make these small changes in your living habits for just one month, then

I often do this "balancing act" on the lecture platform.

I'm sure you'll want to go the limit and learn how to live so as to be always in the condition outlined in the second paragraph of this article.

Eat one full meal, all you can enjoy, of Roman Meal, Bekus-Puddy or Lishus, one full meal of vegetables grown above the ground, raw or very lightly steamed (preferably raw); a third meal of anything reasonable in food. Chew all foods well. Exercise and follow the routine outlined in paragraph three of this article. If you do not know how to exercise send 50c for my book "SYSTEMATIZED MUSCLE EXERCISES" (illustrated). In any case, write for my free bulletins on food and health. Address Robt. G. Jackson, M.D., 576 Vine Ave., Toronto, Ont.

Playgirl

CHAPTER I

Ronny had stuck his head in the dining-room door, said, "Howdy, folks." and vanished. Five minutes later he came into the room, kissed his mother and sat down, facing Sandra across the table. He kept his eyes on his plate, and when his mother asked if he had had a tiring trip he merely nodded.

"Go to New York about your radio job, son?"

He nodded again. "Yes, Mom." Offering no explanation, not encouraging questions.

Sandra said, "I've had a grand time at the office, Ronny. Worked all day yesterday and today. You won't have to do a great deal to catch up, I'm glad to say."

"You shouldn't have worked all day, I asked you not to."

"Yes, I know," she replied brightly, "but I felt like doing it. I'm equal to it now, Ronny. I think I'm as strong as I ever was."

There was a long silence. Then they heard someone in the hall. A moment later Lucille came in, and Sandra's heart almost stopped beating. Her eyes flicked from Lucille to Ronny and back to Lucille again. Lucille said she had stopped at home to leave her bag and change. "It's good to get back, I'm dead tired," she looked dead tired. She looked, Sandra thought, beaten.

And still she had not spoken to Ronny, nor had Ronny spoken to her.

Mrs. MacAllister asked as Lucille sat down beside Ronny, "How's your patient, Lucille?"

Lucille drew a slim hand across her eyes. "He'll live, but—he was badly mangled. He was in an automobile accident. I'll have to go back tomorrow morning."

Sandra thought, "Why don't you tell us who it is, and where he is? What's the great secret about your patient?"

But no one asked, and presently Ronny said, "When did you go, Lucille?" It was the first time he had looked at her, the first words that had passed between them.

"Friday morning," Lucille said. "You ought to know. I haven't been here since, have I?"

"I went to New York Friday morning," Ronny said, "and I walked in hardly an hour ago."

To Sandra's ears that little exchange between Ronny and Lucille had a mechanical ring, almost as if it had been rehearsed.

"You look tired, Sandra," Lucille said as they were leaving the table. "Haven't been breaking rules, have you?"

Ronny answered that. "She worked all day yesterday and all day today."

"And," said Sandra, forcing a smile, "I'm paying for it. I've a miserable headache."

"Then straight to bed," Lucille told her. "Your mother and father will put me down for a very poor nurse."

When Sandra had gone to her room and closed the door, Lucille motioned Ronny out to the porch. "Let's take a walk, Ronny. I've something to tell you—something that can't wait."

Ronny called to his mother, he and Lucille went out to the street and walked off, slowly, arm in arm.

Sandra leaned against the closed door, hearing their footsteps on the porch; hearing the rasping whine of the gate—explaining this, as she had explained everything this morning, in the light of what was no longer a suspicion but a positive conviction.

Chet said, "It's incredible the progress you've made, Sandra." But he thought, "She's not completely well, however. I don't like that worried look in her eyes."

They were in the yard, behind the house, ostensibly looking over Mrs. MacAllister's garden, but Sandra had led him there wanting to have him to himself for a little. Leaning against the wire fence, she said, "I want you to do something for me, Chet. They've all been so sweet to me here I've really hated to think of going away, and a day or two ago I told them I wanted to stay a few weeks longer. But I don't—now, I want to go back with you and Enid."

"And you want me to be very hard-boiled and take you back whether you want to go or not. Is that it?"

"You know how to do it," she nodded. "Talk to Mrs. MacAllister and tell her you think the change would be good for me. Anything—so I shan't have to explain that I've changed my mind about staying."

Chet took her face between his hands and made her look at him. "Why have you changed your mind, honey?"

"Oh, I can't tell you, Chet. I don't want to think about it."

"You've had your feelings hurt."

"If I had, it would be because, anyone deliberately hurt them. People aren't responsible for what they do in this life. They do things in spite of themselves, in spite of what they want to do very often."

DICTATED BUT NOT READ

"But I thought—" began the typist, meekly.

"It's not your business to think," snapped the manager. "Just you take down what I say, word for word, and keep your own ideas to yourself."

So that afternoon the following letter was brought for him to sign:

"Dear Mr. Brown—Write it with an 'e'. Pure swank—his father was a gardener. With regard to your letter, of whatever date it was, I can quote you the following prices: Hi! Thompson! It's that outsider, Brown. How much shall we stick on? Twenty per cent? Make it thirty? Right. Thirty dollars a ton. Awaiting your esteemed order I am, yours truly, That's settled him."

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT
By Ely Culbertson
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: The enclosed hand is, I think, good enough to send along to you. It was played in a three table duplicate game and a terrific controversy arose as to how it should be bid. I will give you three sets of bidding and ask you to comment on all three and to determine which, if any, of the bidding series was correct."

"This was the hand.

"At table 1 the king of clubs was opened and the three heart contract went down one trick."

"At table 2, North opened the nine of spades against the three no trump contract (South not having bid hearts) and game was easily made."

"At table 3, South having bid hearts and North having led the suit, West, the declarer, went down two tricks doubled."

"There has been considerable betting done as to which bidding was correct."

"Yours very truly,
"R. K. Detroit, Mich."

First, I disapprove of the one no trump used by all three West players as the opening bid. One diamond was the correct opening.

Aside from that I think that South, at table 2, deserves the palm for his failure to enter the bidding. Despite South's strong hand, strategy demands trapping rather than aggressive measures. It takes little vision on South's part to know that North must hold a "blank" and even three hearts, for all South can tell, might be severely penalized.

South having bid three hearts at tables 1 and 3, I approve West's double at table 1 rather than the three no trump bid at table 3. West is not strong enough to bid three no trump over East's non-committal two spade response, and

APRIL CANAL TOLLS

LARGEST TANKER
The 30,000-ton Emile Miguet—the world's biggest tanker—was launched at Dunkirk recently. Built for the Compagnie Navale des Petroles, the vessel is 577 feet long, and has a beam of 74 feet, and with a full cargo, a draft of 31 feet, 8 inches. The vessel, which has nine Diesel motors developing a maximum of 7,260 horsepower. Three boilers will provide power for the auxiliary services and pumps for filling the tanks. When she is not at sea, two of these boilers will be heated by the exhaust.

CUNARD PROFITS
Cunard Steamship Company, Limited, report for the year ended December 31, 1936, shows net profit of $22,740 after providing for depreciation of steamships and other properties and plant and debenture interest compared with a net profit of $25,535 in 1935. Net profit of $25,535 after taxes, depreciation, interest, etc., were taken care of, as against a net loss of $61,769 in 1935. RATES GO UP
Tramp rates on lumber and grain have gone up considerably in the past year and shippers are beginning to wonder what the Summer will bring forth, says The New York Journal of Commerce. A year ago tramps would handle lumber out of Montreal at 50s a standard, or $12 per 2,000 board feet. During the past Winter, rates went to 70s a standard. Several weeks ago the rates on tramp ships were 80s, with some bookings at 82s. The liners are also moving up rates. Last year softwood deals went out of Montreal at 55s a standard. During the Fall and Winter, 1936-37 prices rose to 60s. At the present time the liner rate for deals is 70s. A year ago the regular rate for wheat from Montreal was 2s a quarter. This means forty-eight cents for 400 pounds or eight bushels, from the St. Lawrence to most British ports. A month ago wheat was shipped at 3s a quarter or nine cents a bushel, with prospects of further advances.

BEHELD FLAMES ON PORT SIDE

Room Steward of Hindenburg Heard Two Distinct Heavy Explosions

LAKEHURST, N.J., May 13 (P).—The first member of the Hindenburg's crew to tell publicly his story of the disaster described today how an explosion which "sounded like a big gun" followed appearance of flames on her hull.

Max Nimmerberg, a room steward, testifying before the Commerce Department investigation board, said he was in the dining saloon, well forward in the ship, when he looked through a window toward the stern and beheld flames on the port side.

"LIKE A BIG GUN"
As he saw the flames, he related, speaking in English, he heard an explosion which sounded "like a big gun." A second explosion made the same loud noise, he said.

He was too excited, he said, to remember if there had been any vibration underfoot, or if the dining saloon lights were burning.

He said he dropped from a window when he estimated he was fifty feet above the ground. He apparently had suffered no injuries from his falling into the wet, sandy field.

IS IMPROVING

NEW YORK, May 13 (P).—A bulletin, issued today at the Columbia Presbyterian Medical Centre, said the condition of Captain Max Pruss, commander of the dirigible Hindenburg, and Captain Alfred Sammit, chief officer, is improving.

Fishery Company From Japan Will Operate on Coast

TOKYO, May 13 (P).—The Japan Fishery Company today announced it would form a joint Japanese-Mexican concern to carry out fishing operations off the coast of Mexico. Another trawler will be sent into those waters, where two Japanese ships have been fishing for lobsters and shrimps for two years.

Vancouver Shipping

VANCOUVER, May 13 (P).—Ralph O. Campney and F. W. Riddell, National Harbors Board executives, arrived today on an official visit which will last a fortnight. During that time many important matters will be discussed with shipping and civic interests.

Mr. Campney had, no further statement to make regarding the announcement from Ottawa a few weeks ago that the Vancouver Board will withdraw from the Shipping Federation of British Columbia on July 1.

Vancouver will celebrate its annual Port Day tomorrow. W. A. Rundle, secretary of the Port Day committee, states that messages of good will have been received from ports all over the world.

The four-masted bark Balasore, which has quitted the seas since 1892, will end her life as a log-carrying barge between here and San Francisco. Built in Glasgow, she called under German colors until the war, when she was interned in San Francisco and acquired there by the Dollar Line.

The present owners are the Kelly Logging Company, who are at work dismantling the once proud bark.

Over the holiday seven halibut ships arrived in port with cargoes totaling 1,111 tons, valued at $100,000. Twenty-eight thousand pounds of chicken were sold at prices ranging from 62 to 71; 78,700 pounds of medium from 7 to 7.5, and 13,000 pounds of large for 5. Red cod sold for 3 cents and black for 3.8.

HUBBELL SCORES TWENTY-FIRST STRAIGHT WIN

STRETCHES WINNING STREAK TO HANG UP NEW PITCHING MARK

Ace Pitcher of New York Giants Erases Record Established by Rube Marquard Back in 1912 As He Defeats Pirates, 5-2 — Cards and Cubs Win—Kuhel Hits Three Triples

NATIONAL LEAGUE
NEW YORK, May 13 (AP)—King Carl Hubbell, defying a dark jinx day and the power of Pirate bats, stretched his National League victory string to twenty-one today by whipping Pittsburgh, 5-2, with a six-hit pitching performance. The victory broke the latest Pirate streak that had run to five consecutive wins. It was their fourth defeat this season. Hubbell did more than make the Pirates walk the plank as he collared them with perfect control of his screwball. In the second inning he doubled off Lefty Brandt, who started on the mound, and in the fifth he singled to drive home the final run.

CARL HUBBELL

Dick Bartell shoved Hub into a lead in the first inning by hitting his eighth home run of the year. All available big league records show Hubbell's string of twenty-one straight wins, begun last July 17 against the same club, has never been accomplished before. The best previously listed was twenty straight, compiled by Rube Marquard, another Giant great, with one victory in 1911 and nineteen straight in 1912. Like Marquard's, Hubbell's streak is marred by a world's series defeat.

Double Decides Game

BOSTON, May 13 (AP)—Lacking a portable-batting outfielder when he needed one, Manager Charlie Grimm called upon Phil Cavarretta to play that role today and the transplanted first baseman obliged by driving out a twelfth-inning double with the bases loaded that clinched the Chicago Cubs' 8-6 victory over the Boston Bees.

Catcher John Bottarini, once with Seattle and Los Angeles, was added to the club's long casualty list in the third inning, when one of Vince DiMaggio's foul tips ripped off a finger nail on his right hand. Hartnett, who has been idle because of an injury, was pressed into service and finished the game in impressive fashion.

AMERICAN LEAGUE
ST. LOUIS, May 13 (AP)—A revamped batting order, with Lou Gehrig out of the clean-up spot for the first time since 1935, injected some of the 1936 pounding punch back into the New York Yankees today and they trounced the Browns, 4-2, with a twelve-hit attack.

In Gehrig's No. 2 slot, Manager Joe McCarthy inserted Joe DiMaggio, dropped from third place, and the shift proved a success. Jarring Joe collected a triple and two singles and drove in three of the Yankee runs. Gehrig, finally coming out of his slump in fifth place in the batting order, hit a double for his first safety in twenty-two times at bat.

Lefty Gomez, coming through with his third victory of the year, stopped the Browns with eight hits and fanned nine.

It was the Tigers' first victory in five games and permitted them to displace Boston in third place.

The rookie from Beaumont, Tex., outpitched Wesley Ferrell, although Ferrell also allowed but five hits. Gill issued no bases on balls, none of the Boston safeties went for extra bases and only one Red Sox runner reached second base. Gill had appeared in relief roles twice before starting today's game.

Charley Gehring, with a double and an eighth-inning home run into the bleachers in right-center, was the only Tiger to get two hits. His activities today numbered a double, single, a walk, a stolen base and being hit by a pitched ball as lead-off man. Tim Keist Scores Decisive Victory Over Mainland Boy

Victoria Welterweight Hands Al Ford, Vancouver Colored Fighter, Boxing Lesson in the Main Event at Empire Theatre—Bob Keist and Eddie Wise Are Awarded Decisions

Turning in one of the smartest exhibitions of his ring career, Tim Keist, Victoria better, last night punched his way to a clean-cut victory over dusky Al Ford, Vancouver, Canadian lightweight title claimant, in the ten-round bout of Promoter Bert Bailey's second show at the Empire Theatre.

Billy Inglis, veteran fist-cutter, who laid his leather mittens aside almost a quarter of a century ago, was the third man in the ring. He called eight rounds for Keist, one for Ford and one even.

It was a great triumph for the local fighter and definitely established him as a main event boy. He fought a cool, determined mix and was never in trouble. Keist scored repeatedly in close and was certainly the perfect master of the situation in the infighting. He weaved perfectly, caused Ford to miss many times and then scored effectively with smart, well-planned counter punching.

The dusky Mainlander had little more than a good right hand to throw at Keist, but seldom had an opportunity to land effectively. Twice in the fourth round Ford sent right hands to the Victoria boy's head and he rocked under the blows.

GIVEN FINE HAND
There was not a dull moment in the fight, one of the best seen here for many a moon, and the 300 or so fans certainly gave Keist a great hand at the finish. It was worthy of better support.

The going was so hot that the boys continued battling after the bell two or three times. In the second session, Keist and Ford, while mixing it near the ropes, fell through to the floor outside the ring. They were uninjured and climbed back into the ring to continue their battle.

Ford stood up well under the barrage of punches tossed his way by Keist, but in the eighth round, when four stinging rights caught him on the point of the chin, he was glad to hang on. Again in the ninth the Vancouver battler was forced to hang on.

Keist, in the pink of condition, was fresh at the finish, while Ford was a tired battler. In his dressing room after the bout Keist was busy receiving the congratulations of his friends. He was a happy boy and certainly had every reason to be.

Keist weighed 151 pounds, two more than Ford.

WINS SEMI-WINDUP
Danny Murray, Vancouver middleweight, won the nod over Ed Jones, former Edmonton fighter, in the semi-windup over six rounds. The boys did a lot of heavy punching, and at times stood toe to toe, much to the delight of the fans. Jones dropped Murray for a four-count in the second round. In the fourth round Murray accidentally threw a low blow and the bout was halted for a few minutes. Jones' left optic was swollen late in the mix and he looked very tired. Murray weighed 160 pounds, and Jones, 165 pounds.

Eddie Wise, shifty Montrealese, tossed too many gloves for Bob Wallace's Hand Entirely Healed For Next Fight

Wallace's Hand Entirely Healed For Next Fight

TORONTO, May 13 (AP)—Gordon Wallace, Vancouver, declared tonight his left hand, broken against Sammy Luftspring, is entirely healed and he is ready to defend his Canadian welterweight boxing championship here Monday night against Frankie Genovese.

"My left hand—and that's my better one—is quite okay again. In fact, I accidentally tested it out when boxing Ray Cook today. I hit him a solid punch on the forearm, and my hand was not affected in the least."

"My weight is better than when I fought Luftspring, and I guess I'm getting more accustomed to the climate here. I was only around 144 1-2 when going in against Luftspring, but I'm 148 right now, and feel great. I'll weigh 146 or 148 1-2 next Monday, and will make that weight easily and still be feeling great."

Painter's Bruins and Laundry in Victories

Former Nine Gains 15-12 Decision Over Kents in "A" Section of City Softball League—New Method Defeats Victoria Longshoremen

Making their debut in senior "A" company, Painter's Bruins, last season's British Columbia senior "B" champions, last night defeated Kents, 15-12, in a free-hitting and high-scoring "A" section fixture at the Royal Athletic Park.

Playing at Victoria West Park, New Method Laundry, back in the loop after a year's lay-off, came through with a 9-5 triumph over the Victoria Longshoremen. The trusty willow of George "Porky" Andrews, Bruins' first sacker, winning considerable of the winning punch for the fuelmen. Andrews crashed out a circuit drive in the first frame with the bags loaded and later in the game punched out two timely base knocks which accounted for runs.

Dale and Brown also crashed out four-base hits for the winners. "Chuck" Turner started on the hill for Kents and was driven to the showers in the fourth frame. Bruins collected nine hits and eleven runs during his stay on the mound. Lloyd Jones, veteran southpaw, took up the heavy duties and was nipped for five hits and four runs. Glendinning worked for six innings for the winners. He was relieved at the start of the seventh by Harold Turner. Kents collected twelve bingles from Glendinning and made them good for an even dozen runs.

George Robertson, Kents' shortstop, was ejected from the game after arguing with President Jack Taylor, base umpire.

Security Prices Drop Sharply at New York Mart

NEW YORK, May 13 (AP).—Fresh labor upsets in steel and motor fields today touched off one of the sharpest stock market declines of the year.

Heavy industrials led the slump, with utilities a close second. Losses ranged from 1 to 5 points generally, with several issues down much more. New lows for the past ten months were widespread.

Frequent feeble attempts to rally the list met with poor success, although rally responded better than other groups. Closing quotations were around the lowest of the day.

Transfers totaled 1,774,350 shares, compared with yesterday's aggregate of 674,976.

Concentrating on the railroad section, operators for the decline poured offerings in the bond market, forcing heavy losses in lower rates and speculatively tinged carriers.

Industrial and utility loans felt back fractions to more than a point, while high-grade issues met with substantial jolts for the first time in many sessions.

There was little doing in the foreign market.

WHEAT FUTURES
DROP FRACTIONS

WINNIPEG, May 13 (AP).—Export purchases of Canadian wheat estimated at 500,000 to 750,000 bushels.

On the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today and wheat futures ended trading 7-8 to 3-8 cents lower.

Unseasoned wheat prices followed weakness in North American stock markets and reaction from early gains on the Chicago grain market.

At the close May wheat sold for 126-5/8, July 125-1/4 to 125-1/8 and October 116-1/4 to 116-1/8.

Values shot more than a cent higher at the start on sales of Canadian wheat credited to Germany.

But all wheat markets weakened when moderate selling appeared in sympathy with irregular stocks.

Winnipeg wheat prices underwent little selling in late dull trading.

Liverpool closed 7-8d higher to 3-8d lower. Buenos Aires at noon was 1-4 to 1-2 cent lower.

Competitive export prices at Liverpool showed the spread between Canadian and Australian offers had narrowed.

With the lowest margin in months with No. 2 Northern May shipment only 4-5 cents higher, placing Canadian wheat on an attractive basis.

Export support offered to rye and barley boosted these coarse grains a cent but prices reacted in sympathy with wheat.

Call Her Mother

By J P. McEvoy and J H. Striebel

Jane Dixon Says:

A SHIFTLSS MOTHER CAN TURN A HOME INTO A HOVEL AND TURN LOOSE ON THE WORLD CHILDREN WHO GROW UP TO BE MENTAL AND MORAL DELINQUENTS

Will the social scientists, who are working out cures for the ailments that afflict mankind, please concentrate for a while on a specific for shiftlessness?

A shiftless father can injure his entire family. A shiftless woman can turn a home into a hovel, no matter how nicely furnished and well equipped it is for good housekeeping. What is more, she can turn loose on the world a parcel of ill-bred, ill-kept children who grow up to be mental and moral delinquents.

You know the kind of man I mean. He's the fellow who doesn't seem able to find a job that will fit him. He never holds a job more than a few days or a couple of weeks because by that time it begins to bind or wrinkle or shrink and he's so sick of it he quits and looks for another. So he lets the grocery and the meat bills wait and he buys a new radio so he can listen in to what's going on while he rents up a while.

You know the kind of woman I mean, too. She's the one who can sit and rock and read that continued love story Monday morning though the children haven't a clean undergarment, and the house looks like it had been playing tag with a tornado. If all the tin cans that come out of her back door were put end to end they'd make a pipe line to Timbuctoo and back.

HUSBAND PAYS AND PAYS

Here is one of the shiftless sisters, introduced by her husband:

My Dear Miss Dixon, - If ever a man needed words of wisdom from an expert, I'm the bird. I married a woman who went on a sit-down strike the day we started our honeymoon and she's been "out" ever since - nine years to be exact. The heck of it is she's not unloved, so there's no organization to pay her benefits. It's up to me to pay and pay and pay.

You ought to see some of the nice furniture we got when we started housekeeping. It couldn't look worse if it had spent these years in a hobo camp.

I can't remember how many full sets of dishes we've had during this time, and maybe there are a couple of forks or a spoon or so left from the outfit of flat silver my parents gave us for a wedding present. The rest got mixed up with the trash somehow and went to the ash heap.

I'd take my medicine by staying away from home and letting her wallow in her own pen, but we have three children, two girls and a boy, and they have to be taught to wash behind the ears. Their mother hasn't time. The movies in our neighborhood change too often and household drudgery gives her a backache. I can't recall ever coming home in the evening without finding the breakfast dishes in the kitchen sink.

ADVISED TO EMPLOY HOUSEKEEPER

A husband might make the best of such a bad bargain, but no father who cares a hoot for his children is going to sacrifice them to a shiftless woman, even though she's their mother. Maybe you can offer a suggestion. - End-of-Rope.

I was about to suggest you pick up your personal sit-down striker, chair and all, and dump her into the ash can along with the tin cans and the family silver. Perhaps I'd better think up some other remedy. That one, though by no means too severe, might cause legal complications.

Your wife refuses to do her job. Pay her no money. Take care of all family expenses yourself and employ a housekeeper, if you can afford one, to look after your home and your children. If that doesn't cure her she is an incurable and you had better look for ways and means to free yourself and to protect your children from her shiftlessness.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"THE THREE R'S" By their public officials, ye shall know them: might be a rather exacting measuring rod to apply to the intelligence of modern electorates. And to electorates not so modern, too.

For example: In the common expression "the three R's," which in Hall represents Religion, Rice and Rhythm, we have a monument to a British dignitary beside whom our own officialdom occasionally shines by comparison. We owe the famous phrase to Sir William Curtis, illiterate alderman of the City of London.

Called upon at a public banquet to propose a toast, the illustrious company was astonished to hear His Honor drink: "To the three R's - readin', ritin' or 'rhythmetics!'"

A white shirtwaist dress this season may be "dressed up" with several different jackets - a collarless blouse, for instance, a hand-knit bolero jacket bound in gingham, a bolero in suede, pique or printed sharkskin, white doekin jacket, short, loose jacket with short sleeves.

CANDIDATES IN B.C. CONFIRMED

Ballot Papers Will Offer 187 Official Nominees for 48 Seats in House

One hundred and eighty-seven candidates will have their names printed on British Columbia ballot papers, to contest forty-eight seats in the coming provincial election. Polling occurs on June 1, with both resident and absentee voting to be recognized.

There are no acclamations, and each of the forty-eight seats will be contested by from two, to as many as six candidates as in the case of Saanich, provincial electoral officials confirmed yesterday.

Parties represented include the Conservatives, Liberals, C.C.F., Social Credit and British Columbia Constructives, with a scattering of Independents.

Electoral officials confirmed the general list of candidates published this week after the close of nominations on May 11, with are arranging for the printing of the actual ballots.

Ballots for the health insurance plebiscite have been prepared. The question is: "Are you in favor of a comprehensive plan of health insurance progressively applied?"
